

It's simply not possible to quit the mafia.

Unfortunately, Dekker and Hallmayer find this out a little too late. The two devise a plan instead to cheat the mafia out of millions.

Carl Dekker is a German-born American citizen and an investment banker in New York. After he's fired for breach of contract, he desperately needs money. His immediate solution is to become an independent free market consultant and unknowingly gets caught up in lucrative mafia deals.

Hans-Peter Hallmayer is a German native working as an independent advisor in Bavaria. He is tasked with assisting Dekker in setting up an off-shore banking system.

Once they realize their system is being used by the mafia for money laundering, they already know too much.

And now the pair have two new problems: the mafia is looking for their millions, and the CIA and FBI are on their trail as well. It seems the only way out is to join forces with the CIA.

Hans Joachim Palm was born in 1946 near Düsseldorf, Germany as the son of a textile manufacturer and has earned a degree in business. He now lives in the U.S. as an American citizen and has begun writing crime novels. His long-time, in-depth knowledge and experience stems from establishing his own international financial firms around the world where he came into contact with members of the mafia. His books are a reflection of his personal experience of working in international finance and his co-operation with the CIA.
